of that honorable body, to allow the extra pay to one individual in two capacities; for the appropriation made to carry out the object of giving the Clerks additional pay is already exhausted, without having even been sufficient to compensate those that served in one capacity.

For the time Mr. Taylor was assistant Clerk of the H. R. and assistant engrossing Clerk, it would seem that he has already received more than ample compensation, by having been allowed the sum of $17.00 per diem.
