I recollect, he was dismissed the service. The Memorial of Captain Hinton was presented to Congress, and as well as I now recollect it was passed by, owing the press of business, and the great confusion, existing at that Session at Austin.

All that is left to me as a citizen of Texas, and one feeling duply in its honor, and welfare, is to say I hope "that the authorities of the State may pay the last farthing now claimed by Mas Bond — It is just.

Truly Thine
