AUDITOR'S OFFICE,

Houston, 9th Nov 1837

from what he knows of Claimant & his Transactions he believes

This day came Joseph Rae and says the annexed instruments are just, true and original, and the only one that Claimant has offered for liquidation: that he owes the government nothing on his own account or on account of any other person. That the customary price of flour in that section of country at that time was twenty & half cents pr pound.

Sworn to before

[illegible] Auditor.
