In fact he could not have been properly made a party. He has nothing to do with the payment of the money but to ascertain by recalculation the correctness of the amount embraced in the Certificate — this can as readily be done from the Books & original papers in the Auditors Office as by inspection of the Certificate itself. But is not necessary to discuss every objection which might have been urged in the case when ~~the case~~ it was pending before the Court, as all and every of them have either been waived by the parties or adjudicated by the Court. We are therefore of opinion that the Treasurer is bound to obey the decree of the Court and that it amply protects him in doing so.

R. J. Hamilton

W. S. Oldham