fought the duel, and General Johnson was shot through the hips; from that camp we marched to Victoria where we camped most of the winter; In February 1837 we started to march from Victoria to Goliad; the first day a courier met us at a creek and said the Mexicans were coming; we fell back to Victoria and sent word to General Houston at the camp on the Navidad; General Houston came up with his companies; we all then marched back to the camp west of Texana, and very soon afterward we went to a camp called Camp Bowie East of the Navidad, about four or five miles south of Texana; at this last camp we were discharged. A man named Thompson was first Lieutenant of the company; both Captain and first Lieutenant were absent when we were discharged, and 2nd Lieutenant Anthony Deffenbaugh was in Command; we went from Camp Bowie to Austin where General Felix Huston signed our papers; the second Sergeant of the company was Perry J. Allors, he was with the company when I joined
