of the place. — Paulino de la Garza continued to reside in Goliad, till the order of General T. Rusk obliged ~~obliged~~ all the Citizens of Goliad, to leave their homes; in execution of said order, Paulino de la Garza removed his family, and went with affiant first to the Rancho of Carlos de la Garza, his relation, and afterwards to the Villanueva de Santa Rita. — But, after the Battle of San-Jacinto, when the old citizens of La Bahia tried to return, to their homes, they found that locators had considered the — surrounding lands and even the town itself, as vacant land, but finally gave up their pretention, and the most part of the old citizens, among them Paulino de la Garza and affiant, returned home, and took possession of their house and lots. — On the year Eighteen hundred and fifty-five, some of the citizens of that place, who had never received the Donation and Bounty — land Certificates to which they were justly entitled for their military service, in the revolution that separated Texas from Mexico, for want of an original muster roll, received all or part of their due, after, what is called the Seguin's list, was filed, in the Adjutant General Office, by order of Governor Pease. Paulino de la Garza received, at about that time, his donation and a small bounty, and to the personal Knowledge of Affiant, he alinated both in Goliad; and since then he has continued to reside in Goliad County without any interruption up to the date of his death. — Affiant declares that he never Knew any other man bearing the name of Paulino de la Garza, but his old — friend and fellow-townsman, that this, and no ~~other~~ else, was — the person who rendered military service, in the years 1835-36 at the Siege and Storming of Bexar, and that Rosa de la Garza
