Regimental officers, Inure in the Capacity of an Interpreter, and Honorary Member of his Company, than otherwise — and when discharged at the expiration of term of Service of said Regiment, he, said Kaigler, remained in the Service as an Interpreter on the Staff of General Twiggs.

And deponent further says, that On, or about the 4th October 1846, he, deponent, was with said Kaigler in the town of Mier, Mexico; and said Kaigler, then and there, pointed out to deponent the place where the "Mier Prisoners" were captured, and delineated the events of the battle and capture. From all of said circumstances and events, deponent is morally certain of the identity of said William Kaigler, as the same person who was a "Mier Prisoner", as he claims to be in his affidavit.
