in the Spring campaign of 1836, during which the battle of Sangacinto was fought on which he predicates his claim to pension.- in addition to which he also served another campaign of three months the same year.
In my letter to the Comptroller - to which doubtless you would be permitted to refer - I have more fully written accounting for the different spellings of the name - it being sometimes spelled "Kennard" and sometimes "Kinnard" by different members of our family. I send you a Power of Attorney given me by my brother - with power of substitution and I send you a substitute power to act for me, in obtaining the certificate and the installment of the money now due on the pension - which please obtain and remit to me after deducting pay for your services, and return the power of Attorney as it is to continue in my charge. The references to the books I have mentioned will
